The National Supermarket Association (NSA) was founded in 1989 by Hispanic entrepreneurs. It is a trade association that represents the interest of independent supermarket owners in New York and other urban cities throughout the East Coast, Mid-Atlantic region and Florida. Beginning in the mid-seventies, these entrepreneurs had the courage of opening supermarkets in areas abandoned by the large chains, as they were economically depressed and mostly minority neighborhoods. These men and women had the vision and the commitment to fill a vacuum in those communities, at a time when the term food desert was not even coined.

Since its inception women have been an integral part of the NSA's growth. The NSA is focused on cultivating an environment where women feel welcomed and supported. Specially in times like today where an industry that was predominately male, is slowly shifting and we're seeing more women representation in leadership positions. The NSA is proud of this and wants to recognize the women that have paved the way, and those that continue doing so at our very first Women's Forum.
